Profile

Gregory is an architect with overall responsibility for providing master planning, architecture design services, and functions as advisor to our clients and project teams on billions of dollars' worth of international projects in every corner of the globe. Gregory clearly thrives on that sense of excitement, and his enthusiasm can often be contagious. "I'm here to help facilitate the process of drawing out from our clients their ideas, dreams, and grand visions," says Gregory, "and HHCP Design International is the delivery vehicle for transforming those ideas into realities." The variety and extent of Gregory's projects over the years reveals his strength as a facilitator while also testifying to his professional expertise, his business acumen, and his "ideation" (big idea) methodology which serves as the basis for design for all aspects of project delivery including defining overall project objectives, client expectations, strategies, and resources necessary to achieve results in the form of world-class destinations in all market segments, both domestically and abroad.
