Profile

Mr. Ehrig has over 40 years of diversified experience in architecture and the construction industry. He has a comprehensive understanding of planning, designing, developing and managing major building projects. As an Architect, he has managed the design and construction administration of projects from initial planning through owner occupancy. He has experience on projects in both the public and private sectors. His diverse background of project types spans from commercial facilities to airports, office buildings to educational facilities, multi-family residential buildings to single family homes. He has held management positions in all the firms in which he has practiced. Since 2007, he has been involved with providing expert witness consulting services for various litigation matters involving the architect's standard of care, construction defects and premises liability cases. He has testified in several venues and has been certified an expert by several courts. Previously, Mr. Ehrig was Director of Building Development for the Viera Company, his responsibilities included the overview of all vertical development for the 38,000 acre master-planned community of Viera, Florida. He led the design effort and construction coordination oversight of over 500,000 square feet of office, retail and recreational buildings in addition to site-planning of various development opportunities. Serving as Senior Design Manager for the General Consultant on the Orlando International Airport's North Terminal and Near Term Expansion programs, he coordinated and managed over 40 projects totaling more than $500 million. He has also worked with Orange County Public Schools as the Director of Strategic Planning on the multi-year $2.4 Billion Capital Improvement Program for the repair and replacement of over 136 existing and new schools.
